NCLEX-RN

The National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX) is a computer-based exam that assess a candidate's knowledge, skills, and abilities to practice nursing

NCLEX-RN Syllabus

The NCLEX-RN (National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses) syllabus covers four main areas:

Safe and Effective Environment: Includes client rights, ethics, home safety, and accident prevention.

Health Promotion and Maintenance: Covers aging, newborn care, developmental stages, and lifestyle choices.

Psychosocial Integrity: Includes social aspects, emotions, abuse, and clinical dependencies.

Physiological Integrity: Includes therapeutic procedures, risk management, and abnormal responses to therapies.

NCLEX Exam Pattern

Question Types: The NCLEX Exam Pattern uses a variety of question types, including multiple-choice, fill-in-the-blank, ordered response, select all that apply, and hotspot.

NCLEX-PN: For Practical Nurses, the exam has 85–205 questions.

NCLEX-RN: For Registered Nurses, the exam has 75–265 questions.

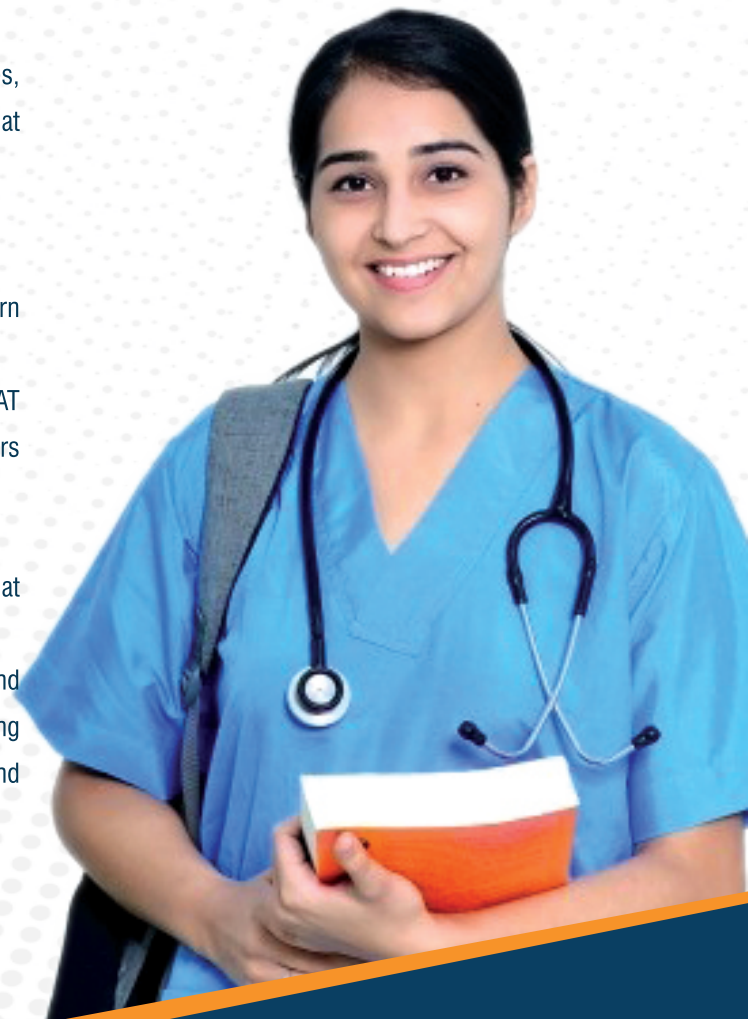

Number of Questions: The number of questions on the NCLEX Exam Pattern varies depending on the exam type and the test-taker's performance:

Computerized Adaptive Testing (CAT): The NCLEX Exam Pattern uses a CAT format, which means the number of questions a test-taker encounters depends on their performance.

Time Limit: A time limit of 5–6 hours, depending on the exam type.

Experimental Questions: The exam includes 15 experimental questions that don't count for or against the test-taker.

Optional Breaks: The exam has two optional breaks, one after two hours and another after 3.5 hours. This test covers a variety of content areas, including basic care and comfort, psychological integrity, and pharmacological and parenteral therapies.

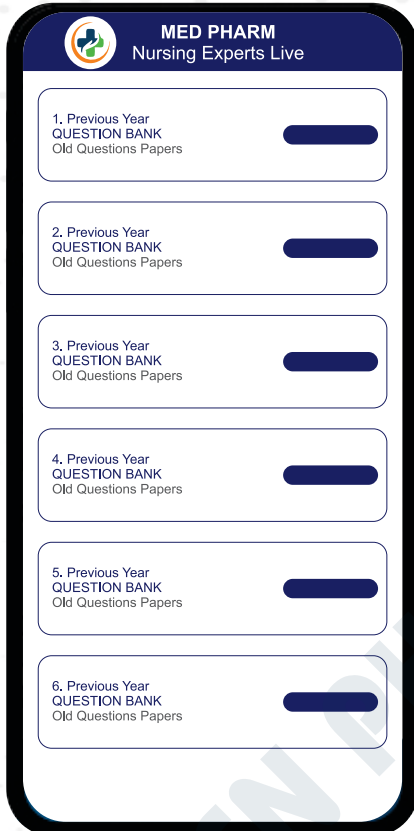

The main difference between the NCLEX-RN and NCLEX-PN lies in the scope of practice and the educational prerequisites. The NCLEX-RN is designed for registered nurses, having a broader focus that includes deeper assessment and critical thinking skills necessary for more complex medical situations. In contrast, the NCLEX-PN is for licensed practical nurses (LPNs) or vocational nurses (LVNs), who typically undergo less extensive training and focus primarily on basic patient care .
